HOW DO WE MEASURE THE SUCCESS OF OUR ONLINE MINISTRY?

In last week's bulletin, I shared with you one of the ways we measure the success of our online ministry—organic reach. Today, I would like to explain what we mean when we report "Live View Families."

When streaming our services live, we do not know how many people may be watching. There may be one person or many more! There is also the possibility that people tune into the services at different times, so we may not know the total number of people that watch on any given Sunday.

So in an effort to acknowledge these viewers (without padding our attendance numbers), we count the total number of viewers that were watching at the same time.

This is the graph from the service this past Sunday. You'll notice that the viewership started off fairly low but maintained a decent level starting at the twenty minute mark. There were four points in the service where there were eight concurrent viewers, so we reported eight Live View Families in last week's report.

I hope this gives you a better idea of where this info comes from.
